DUAL ALLEGIANCE

"The Jews are internationalists and therefore cannot give whole-hearted allegiance to any land." This sounds like a quotation from the Book of Esther. In reality it is only a quotation from some remarks made by Professor Phillip Marshall Brown, of Princeton University, before the meeting of the American Society of International Law which was held in Washington, D.C., recently. Truly, if a real bomb had been thrown into the Assembly it would not have created a greater excitement than did this metaphorical bomb. Mr. Charles Evan Hughes, ex U.S.A. Secretary of State, who was in the chair, left the meeting at once on the excuse of having a previous engagement. Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, the eminent historian of Harvard, threatened to resign when he was checked in his attempt to refute Prof. Brown and the chairman attempted to switch the debate back into its regular channel. Since the meeting, the gauntlet hurled into the arena by Prof. Brown has been taken up by friend and foe all over America. In justice to Prof. Brown it should be stated that he denied having any anti-Semitic intentions in making the remark. He stated what he believed was a fact.

There is little use for us Jews to deny the fact that millions of people on this continent and Europe share this belief that the Jews "are international and therefore unable to give whole-hearted allegiance to any land." Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent and the Klu Klux Klan in the U.S.A. preach it. The Hack und Kreuz organization in the German-speaking countries of Europe insist on it. The Polish Nationalists, who are making life a hell for the Jews, also voice these sentiments. In fact it is the common belief of the average man that the Jews are a separate and separatistic people; living everywhere and though paying allegiance to the country of their residence, nevertheless entertain some secret higher loyalty. This accusation was heard most vehemently during the War when the Jews were spilling their blood on every battle front and were suffering the most of any people in Europe. Though old as the hills, this cry is always new and arouses a response. Of course most intelligent and unprejudiced people do not believe it. Calvin Coolidge, the President of the United States, in an address he delivered the other day in Washington made clear that he did not believe that the Jews could not give wholehearted allegiance to any land. Here is what he said: "The Jewish community of the United States is not only the second most numerous in the world, but in respect of its old-world origins it is probably the most cosmopolitan. But whatever their origin, as people, they have always come to us eager to adapt themselves to our institutions, to thrive under the influence of liberty, to take their full part as citizens in building and sustaining the nation and to bear their part in the defence in order to make a contribution to the national life, fully worthy of the traditions they have inherited."

I take it that these sentiments, voiced by the President of the United States, can be re-echoed by every country in the world that has treated the Jew on a plane of equality and fraternity, the same as that extended to all other citizens. The Jew wants justice to all and special privileges to none. The countries that have practiced justice have always produced the highest type of Jewish citizenship.

There are several reasons why people generally have such a false conception of the Jew. Firstly, people generally are ignorant of the part the Jew has played as a citizen of the different lands in which he lives. Secondly, they misjudge the Jew because he refuses to intermarry and become racially and religiously absorbed by the dominant racial and religious group of the country. Thirdly, most people operate on the theory that loyalty to country and flag is conditioned on erasing from one's spiritual make-up allegiance to one's race and religion, and substituting in place of this allegiance, allegiance to the race and religion of the dominant majority. This conception of nationality is conditioned on racial, religious and cultural homogeneity and standardization. It aims to make all the citizens alike, overlooking the fact that in so doing the country is depriving itself of the very essence of richness and value which goes to produce a great nation. A great American sociologist, Prof. John R. Commons, once said: "For America to be a great nation it need not be of one blood, it need only be of one mind." All intelligent people are in accord with this sentiment.

The ignorance of the contributions which the Jews have made to the countries of which they are citizens is colossal. The Jews of the United States were among her early and first citizens. Jews are responsible for the discovery of America by Columbus. Jews fought in the war of the Revolution. A Polish Jew, Chayim Solomon, financed the Revolutionary War and negotiated the loans raised for Robert Morris with France and Holland, pledging his own personal reputation and fortune for enormous amounts, and personally advancing large sums to such men as James Madison and Thomas Jefferson. In the Civil War of 1861, 8,000 of the less than 150,000 Jews then resident in the United States, fought in the Union forces. Jews constituted over 5 per cent. of the U.S.A. army and navy though they only comprise 3 per cent. of the population.

It is generally unknown what a large part the Jews played in the development of Canada. A few facts will be illuminating. During the last decade of the French occupation the entire provisioning and defence of the country was left in the hands of a Jew, Abraham Gradis, of Bordeaux, France. In the ranks of the English army of conquest were Jewish officers who held high commissions, and in all the wars in which Canada has since been engaged, Jews have played a part not excelled by any sections of the population. Jews in Canada fought for and secured full civil rights twenty years before the same privileges were extended to their co-religionists in England. From the first day of their settlement in Canada, the Jews have contributed to the development of the country to as great an extent as have the adherents of any other religious and national group.

It is not generally known that a Jew established the first direct steamship line between Canada and England and thus became the father of Canada's merchant marine. Jews were the signers of the petition to the English government asking that Canada be granted its first Legislature. They were instrumental in the establishment of the first banks. They were the organizers of the first Committee of Trade. They operated the first steamboats on the St.

The attitude of Miss Justine Waterman Wise, daughter of Rabbi Stephen Wise, toward four months' work under an assumed name in the cotton and woollen mills of Passaic, N.J., makes her experiment noteworthy, aside from the stir it has caused, since Miss Wise told interviewers that there is a black-list in force in the mills; that employees are spied upon; that they are discharged without notice; that they must wait hours for materials, although they are paid on a piece-work basis; that with the law against women working at night declared invalid, many of them do labour all night; that Passaic is a black spot in American industrial life.

Miss Wise said that the Passaic Industrial Council's employment bureau, which discovered her identity when she applied for employment, paid her twenty dollars in advance, and when she signed the receipt with only part of her name, threatened to have her arrested for obtaining money under false pretences. After it was all over, this twenty-one-year-old girl expressed the hope that her experiment should not be considered a fad. Since then Max Stoehr, head of the Botany Worsted Mills and the Garfield Worsted Mills, has withdrawn them from the Industrial Council of Passaic Woollen Manufacturers, to show what he thinks of the treatment accorded her, and the attitude of the Council toward the night-work law. Passaic, at least, is willing to regard Miss Wise's experiment as no fad. Measured by results, it has already accomplished enough to put the experimenter in the class of the serious person with an earnest purpose.

The United States State Department has estimated that 160,000 have applied for Russian visas and 75,000 for Polish visas. Only the first 2,248 Russian, and 5,982 Polish immigrants who applied for visas will obtain them during the fiscal year beginning July 1. The rest will have to wait their turn, which will mean about eighty years for some who now want admission to the United States. Most people don't wait that long to get into heaven.

On their fiftieth wedding anniversary last week, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Straus learned that the Jewish National Farm School model dairy farm at Doylestown, Pa., had been named for them. This was only one of the many testimonials to the life of benevolence and usefulness they have led together.

For years Mr. and Mrs. Straus have given their time, money and active personal interest to the saving of thousands of baby lives through the free distribution of milk to the poor in New York, other cities and abroad. By providing pure milk and refrigeration, they have helped to cut down the infant death rate in New York by more than one-half. Their influence has spread through America and to other countries, awakening people to the absolute need of pure milk in every community, and causing laws to be passed to safeguard the supply against disease germs.

The Strauses belong to a family distinguished not merely for its money, but by its charity, generosity, philanthropy, kindliness and qualities of worth. People will remember them not because they are wealthy, but by their good works. Mr. and Mrs. Straus represent the best in American Jewish citizenship. By their exemplary lives, their integrity, their concern for the public welfare, they constitute a quiet rebuke to all inferior citizens who do nothing better than destroy race and religious peace.

A Jew in Los Angeles recently dared to take a knife and an iron bar from a crazed Negro who had stabbed a white man, and then beg the mob not to lynch the murderer. Pleading, he said: "Don't lynch him! We are all American citizens. We have the police, the courts, and they will take care of him. Give him to me." This Jew was a fruit peddler by the name of Markowitz. Safe to say, he was an Americanized immigrant, the finished graduate of the social workers' curriculum, which turns out immigrants conversant with brotherhood, sense of justice, law, order, etc. Native-born, dyed-in-the-wool American citizens, where they have been produced for the longest time, don't stand off mobs for the protection of Negroes, and talk so confidently about American justice. They don't have to learn the things about America that immigrants do, for aren't they Americans, the real thing?

"Years and years ago I made up my mind that I would not put myself out in any straining effort to interest or amuse a potential reader. Such effort is too difficult for the writer and not so very easy for the reader, either. And anyhow, there is no effective way of determining what 'my public,' as the phrase goes, actually does enjoy. Any attempt to meet its wishes would be the merest guesswork. When I write things which please myself I am on sure ground, because then I have definite proof that at least one person has had a fine time." Heywood Broun in The New York World.

Social Life about 25 Years Ago—
Do You Remember?—

The death occurred in Houston, Texas, of Rabbi Abraham Lazarus, formerly rabbi for six years of Holy Blossom Synagogue, Toronto. He left his wife and three young children. E. Raphel, president of Congregation Beth Israel, of Houston, in his tribute to Rabbi Lazarus, said in part: "His delivery was graceful with no attempt at declamatory effect, while his eloquence was grand. Eschewing the use of stilted phrases, or grandiloquent words, his easy flow of language went directly to the ears and hearts of his auditors. But above and beyond these gifts of nature was the earnest and impressive manner of his sermons that carried conviction. He was endowed with a very sweet disposition, coupled with a zealous desire to labor for the betterment of mankind."

JEWS AGAINST CURB UPON IMMIGRATION

Condemn Stand of Ontario Division of Canadian Labour Party.

Representatives of Jewish organizations in Toronto, met for the purpose of taking issue with the stand of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Labour Party, calling upon the Government to restrict immigration. The following resolution, forwarded to the government at Ottawa, was carried unanimously:

"That as it is in the interests of Canada generally to increase her population in order to settle the vacant land and develop her natural resources to the benefit of capital and labour alike, and as this can only be accomplished through increased immigration; therefore, we are of the opinion that an open-door policy will improve this country's status.

"We oppose, therefore, the decision of the Ontario section of the Canadian Labour Party, which adopted an anti-immigration policy, and this meeting condemns the action of those of their own race who voted for the Labour Party resolution, as it is believed a closed-door policy is against the interests of both Jewish and Gentile workers."

In the business of distributing pure Milk we have set the standard for nearly 25 years. The degree to which this is recognized, and the extent to which our milk is demanded is indicated by the fact that we serve more homes than any individual dairy in the British Empire."

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 6

Appearance of Tea No Guide

The only way to test tea is to taste it. Many people have the idea that a finely rolled and tippy tea is superior in flavour to a large rough leaf. In reality this is not of necessity the case. The altitude at which the tea plant grows determines the amount of essential oil and alkaloid theine in the leaf. The essential oil gives tea its flavour; the theine contributes the stimulating value. The only way to insure always receiving a uniform quality is to insist upon a skilfully blended and scientifically sealed tea like "SALADA" whose reliability, goodness and delicious flavour have become a household word.

He also conferred with the officers of the Hadassah Council and decided to confine his activities to the reorganization of National Fund box work and the formation of new Hadassah Chapters. He urged the placing of the entire box work of the city under the charge of the local Hadassah. On Wednesday afternoon a conference of the National Fund conveners of the various Chapters was held at the home of Mrs. Dunkelman. Mr. Caiserman outlined a comprehensive plan for the reorganization of the National Fund box work under the complete charge of a committee of four from the Hadassah Council, together with the National Fund conveners of the Chapters. On Wednesday evening a meeting was held at the Zionist Institute to discuss the participation of the local youth organizations in Zionist work. Older Young Judaea and other young women's groups will be organized into Junior Hadassah Chapters, not more than six to be formed immediately. On Thursday Mrs. Dunkelman entertained the Toronto Hadassah Council in honour of Mr. Caiserman, who spoke on his two and one-half years' residence in Palestine as chief accountant for the Zionist banks of Palestine. After pointing out the vital importance of constantly increasing the Jewish land holdings in Palestine to fortify the position of the Jewish "Yeshib" and at the same time increase the opportunity for the absorption of more chalutzim, Mr. Caiserman called upon all the members of the Council to co-operate in securing a larger response within the Toronto Chapters to the National Fund box work, which in Montreal had during the past ten months realized $8,000 for the purchase of land in "Eretz Israel." On Friday the officers of the Hadassah Council met at the Zionist Institute to discuss with Mr. Caiserman the reorganization of the Zionist office routine to adequately handle the increased work entailed in the new work.

HEBREW SCHOOL AWARDS PRESENTED

Over 1,200 Jews filled the Talmud Torah hall Sunday night to hear the report of the examiners who examined the 800 children attending five branches of the school. Over eighty per cent. were promoted. S. Miller said that, unlike the Russian student who spent his time learning and then knew nothing, because he was too busy learning, the modern Jewish student, though burdened with two schools, graduates as a thinker.

S. A. Berg, president of the Talmud Torah, outlined the work undertaken by the board of directors, and thanked the teachers. Addresses were also given by Rabbi I. I. Kahanovitch, Rabbi S. Wohlgelerenter, H. L. Weidman, chairman of the board of education, and L. Lewitt, principal.

In the oratorical contest in Hebrew by the students of the five branches, Miss Lillian Saper, of the Fort Rouge branch, won the gold medal presented by A. W. Myers. Her subject was "Why do I like the Hebrew School?" The silver medal for second place was presented by S. Shore, vice-president of the Hebrew Free School, and was won by Harry Goodman of the main branch. His subject was, "What Does the Hebrew Language Mean to Me?" The judges of the contest were Dr. Ben Ezra, G. Scudark and M. Weidman.

Pupils of Miss Rose Bodanis' class offered vocal numbers in Hebrew and Yiddish. The programme included recitations in Hebrew and Yiddish by Ben Zion Steindal, "King" Slobinsky, Gordon Kushner; piano solos by Miss Charlotte Faurer and Miss Gertrude Rosenthal. Presentation of sixty-seven prizes was made by Mesdames A. Slobinsky, M. Weidman, F. Sures, A. Skaletar and S. Goldman. The following won honours: H. Goodie, H. Gersham, R. Spigleman, Z. Rickin, I. Bowman, Z. Sirota, T. Chertkover, A. H. Mandel, C. H. Robins, R. Briker, M. Silverman, M. Cohen, A. Kleifpman, D. Paul, I. Greenberg, H. Shorville, E. Aulin, I. Tenerovsky, W. Chass, R. Kaslovsky, R. TALMUD TORAH NEWS

A Sister evening was held by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Winnipeg Talmud Torahs, April 20, in the auditorium of the Winnipeg Hebrew free school. Mrs. A. Slobinsky, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, was chairlady. Addresses were given by the guests of honour, Rabbi I. I. Kahanovich, H. L. Weidman, chairman of board of education; Sam Berg, president of Talmud Torahs; L. Levitt, principal; Max Kert, youngest member on board of education; Mr. Gorfinkle and Mr. Tussman, teachers of the Talmud Torahs. A platinum wrist watch was presented to Miss Gladys Cohen, secretary of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Mrs. A. Slobinsky, president of the auxiliary, made the presentation. Upon the initiative of Mr. Berg, a cultural society was organized. It will assist the board of directors in the enrollment campaign for pupils, and form a kindergarten. A temporary committee of eighteen ladies was appointed, with Mrs. Lipshetz, chairlady; Mrs. Chertkow, vice-chairlady, and Miss Gladys Cohen, secretary. Refreshments.

Lawrence. They were responsible for the construction of the first railway in Canada, they installed the first waterworks system in a Canadian city, they established the first telegraph line in Canada, and a Jew was at the head of the company that completed the last link of the first trans-Atlantic cable. A Jew was the organizer of the first street car system in a Canadian city, and a Jew was the president of the first gas company in Canada. A Jewish engineer gave Canada its first hydro-electric light system. A Jew was elected the first president of the Dominion Boards of Trade. The first incorporated religious body on the Pacific Coast was a Jewish congregation. The Jews have built up the needle trade and other industries for Canada.

Can such a people, who hold no political allegiance other than to the government or flag under which they live, be incapable "of wholehearted allegiance to any land"? There is no international body or organization that speaks for all the Jews of the world. The Zionist organization, through the Jewish agency, comes nearest to being this sort of body, and yet its function is only to interest the Jews of all countries in helping to establish a Jewish homeland in Palestine. There is certainly no more dual allegiance involved in a Jew's love for Palestine and his helping in its rebirth than there is for an Englishman in Canada to love England or in a French-Canadian's love for French culture, or a Canadian Scotchman's love for the hills of Scotland, etc. In Canada we have learned to appreciate that this does not constitute dual allegiance, but it seems that the United States have yet to learn it. It is just another demonstration that a man's love for his wife need not replace or diminish his love for his mother. As the poet Shelley has said, "It is the nature of spiritual things that to share is not to divide." To love humanity does not make one a disloyal citizen. In truth it should make him a finer and a better citizen.

If the nations of the world expect of the Jew, for the cirizenship they grant him, to forfeit his racial allegiance, his loyalty for the great religion and ethical teachings to which he is heir, to erase from his memory the martyrdom which he has suffered to uphold the high ideals of God, social justice and righteousness as conceived by our prophets, which, in the words of Lecky, have been the mortar that cemented American and all democracies, then the Jew must reply that loyalty to God and religion and the teachings of the Hebrew prophets is higher than that of narrow characteristic parochial citizenship. If to love God and truth and righteousness is disloyalty, then we Jews glory in such disloyalty.

Thank God the enlightened, forward-looking, democratic countries of the world do not ask such a price for citizenship. They welcome the Jew with all the rich spiritual legacy he brings, on a par with all people. And the Jew, in return, renders to his country the very best he possesses in war and peace. It is to the interest of all lovers of democracy and peace to see to it that the ideas of Prof. Brown, and all those like him in high places and in low, should not prevail, but that in their place shall rise triumphant the true ideals of every democratic country which seeks to grant liberty, equality and fraternity to all who pledge their allegiance to it irrespective of race, colour, creed or sex.

Franz Werfel, perhaps most popular among Austria's modern writers, has created somewhat of a sensation by a remarkable novel, entitled "Verdi, Roman der Oper." It deals with the life of the great Italian composer, Verdi, and is already exciting attention among connoisseurs in England and America.
